Marg Iwen : Mister Collins - Father of Anchor Hocking before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Mister Collins - Father of Anchor Hocking:

A History of the Anchor Hocking American Glass Company viewed through the lens of its most prominent pioneering industrialist, Isaac James Collins.

About the AuthorMarg Iwen developed her affinity for antiques in early childhood. She became interested in old glass in 1969 when she purchased her first piece of Early American Pattern Glass at a country auction. One piece led to many, until a collection grew into a home-based business specializing in pattern glass. While collecting, her interest in glass factories and the skilled craftsmen who worked in them increased. Researching the behind-the-scenes activity in glass factories resulted in several articles in glass-related journals as well as her first book, Shield F, The Federal Glass Company, 1900 - 1979. Born in Merrill, Wisconsin, Marg earned her B.S. and M.S. from the University of Wisconsin, Madison, where she now lives with husband Frank and Schnauzer Data.
